

Tracy Wilkerson – Artist Statement

Having spent 20+ years in front of a computer for Corporate America while raising a very artistic daughter, my artistic expressions didn't start kicking in until 2006. I started with handmade one-of-a-card greeting cards which are now being sold in stores, online and at vendor shows.

Then in 2008, I started creating 2D and 3D mixed media artwork, using found objects, especially items headed towards the landfill. This is where my passion for resin began. I keep coming up with creative ways of looking at and using unusual objects, and wondering what I will create next! Sometimes, it's the material that inspires me, sometimes it is a concept or a title that I want to 'fit' a piece into, sometimes it just creates itself as I move things around.

I am a tactile, so using resin on artwork allows me (and others) to actually touch the artwork. It's fun and satisfying :-)
